

GERMANY'S FOOD SUPPLIES AMPLE, DUTCH DECLARE

The Hague Paints Rosy Picture of Conditions Inside the Kaiser's Empire.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 12.—Reports reaching here from Germany indicate that the Allies will do well not to expect too much from their starvation policy against the Central Powers. The German cattle stock, for instance, during the war grew at least in quantity, and comparing the situation now with that of the summer of 1916, there is a reported increase of more than a million head. It is as big now as it was in December, 1913.

Only the pig stock is much less. Next month some millions of pigs will be killed to save fodder.

The cattle situation is described as better now than was expected in June.

The potato crop is a record breaker and sugar beets promise satisfactory results. Cabbage is good to medium and apples and pears are very good.

The greatest difficulty is still the fat problem. From kernels of nuts, from fruit and corn a great quantity of oil is gained which would make the fat situation better if pork and meat were not so much less than they were last year. Generally speaking the confidence of the population in the food question is much greater than it was during the summer.

Factories are working twenty-four hours daily and are continually contracting for more labor, which gives the impression that there can be no serious shortage in raw materials.

Before every food store long files of waiting customers are always seen, a great percentage of whom are disappointed because, long before the end of the line is reached the placard "Sold" appears in the windows.

The best idea of the food situation can be gained from the rations given to the people of Berlin weekly. An authoritative statement from that city gives the following:

Each person gets four pounds of bread, costing the equivalent of 18 cents in American money. Laboring people get an extra bread card and seven pounds of potatoes, costing 17 cents, also they get an extra butter card for one and three-quarters ounces, costing 7 cents; one ounce of margarine at 3 cents; seven ounces of meat without bones at 20 cents; five ounces of meat with bones at 25 cents.

Children get a half ration of meat or bones. Vegetarians get, instead of meat, a half pound of cereal, oatmeal, etc. Sticking pigs can be had without cards at $1.12 a pound. For every fourteen ounces of meat or 3 cents' worth of milk. At a cost of 10 cents a litre (a little less than a quart), little children can get daily one litre and adults three-fourths of a litre. Young mothers and sick people get a quarter of a litre extra.

There is a great quantity of vegetables on the market, and they are not expensive. The people do not eat at home any more. The popular kitchens in the eastern and northern quarters of the city charge 10 cents a meal, composed mostly of mashed potatoes and other vegetables with some meat or fat. The middle class kitchens charge from 15 to 25 cents, including meat, vegetables and soup.

RATIONS IN GERMANY ARE FAR BELOW NEEDS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Recent figures on the German weekly food rations were made public by the Food Administration today with the comment that it is far below the amount required for health and vigor and is likely to have serious and permanent results.

The weekly ration amounts to about 4½ pounds of bread, half a peck of potatoes, a cupful of beans, peas or oatmeal, half a pound of meat, 12 cubes of sugar, 6 individual patties of butter and an equal amount of other fats. The caloric value of these foods in the aggregate is less than half the amount estimated by the Food Administration as sufficient for a person in a sedentary occupation.

Reports to the State Department indicate that the German harvests this year have not relieved the food situation to any appreciable extent.
